

For the new donation website:

Every Step South Funds New Zealand's First Brain Tumour Registry.

Supported by Brain Tumor Support, every dollar donated goes directly to NANOS, the leading neuro-oncology society in NZ, to help build New Zealand's first national Brain Tumour Registry and advance brain cancer research. By collecting better data, researchers can better understand brain cancer, gain more funding, improve treatment, and create more hope for future patients and their families.

Be part of something bigger.

Donate today.

Then your button.

Donate Now

(Then immediately the progress.)

$353 of $100,000

Help Build the Foundation

Current Phase

Phase 1 • $25,000

$353 raised

"Every contribution helps lay the foundation for New Zealand's first Brain Tumour Registry."

- Phase 1 — Registry Planning ($25k)
- Phase 2 — National Data Collection ($50k)
- Phase 3 — Research Growth ($100k)

Where Your Donation Goes

- + Building New Zealand's first Brain Tumour Registry
- + Supporting NANOS' brain cancer research

Every donation helps create the national evidence researchers need to better understand brain cancer, compare New Zealand internationally, attract future research funding, and improve outcomes for future generations.

Proudly Supported By

- Brain Tumour Support NZ
- NANOS
- Sponsors etc.

Why Sam Runs

Some challenges change your perspective forever.

After facing his own mental health struggles, Sam realised life was too short to stand still. He chose to change course by pushing himself beyond his limits, challenging both his mind and body, and dedicating that journey to making a difference for others.

Then someone close to him was diagnosed with brain cancer.

He couldn't change the diagnosis. But he could help change what comes next.

So he chose to run..

- + Twenty-five ultramarathons.
- + Twenty-five consecutive days.

= The length of the north Island of New Zealand.

Not because running will cure brain cancer.

But because every kilometre can help build something that will outlast the run itself.

Every donation helps fund New Zealand's first Brain Tumour Registry and supports NANOS' research into better diagnosis, treatment, and outcomes for future generations.

This isn't just about one person running. It's about thousands of New Zealanders choosing to do something that matters.

Follow the Journey

Instagram

Facebook

Documentary Website

Share the journey. Follow Sam. Tell someone.

Every conversation helps build the movement.

Philosophy:

When faced with something you cannot change... choose what you can.

Sam chooses to run.

Researchers choose to learn.

Families choose to love.

Doctors choose to care.

Volunteers choose to give.

Sponsors choose to contribute.

Today, you can choose to donate.

Together, we're building the future of brain cancer research in New Zealand.